

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides a program which can maintain program compatibility between different hardware in a small hardware quantity and realize high performance scalability. An operation to be executed and an execution order limitation (dependency) for executing the operation are described into a program given to a logic circuit (hardware) having an ALU and a control circuit. The control circuit in the logic circuit decides an operation execution order based on the dependency described into the read program.